

A Speech Encouraging Students/ Fellow Schoolmates to Protect Pandas

3D Tang Lai Man, Nancy

Good morning, teachers and fellow schoolmates,

My name is Nancy, the Vice-president of SPCA. Let me ask you some questions. Do you like eating wild-game dishes? Do you like coats and crafts made from ivory or horn? Do you know when you are using these things, you are killing many endangered species which could become extinct so we will never see them again. We must protect them. Now, let's talk about the ways of protecting endangered species.

Let's talk about the causes. Logging is the main reason leading to their extinction. People go on logging to make wooden products. As you know, logging damages animals' habitats. There are fewer and fewer habitats along their migratory routes. Many animals could become extinct; for example, our national treasures — pandas, elephants and lions.

Another causes are hunting for horn and ivory, and eating wild-game dishes. Animals die out easily because of these reasons. There are fewer and fewer endangered species. Finally, we will never see them again. Try to imagine it: when there are no animals in the world because of our hunting, we won't have enough food to eat.

Okay, do you have any suggestions about how to protect them? Let me tell you what you can do. The main point is, of course, not to eat wild-game dishes anymore. Don't forget that we must not buy fur coats or hunt animals. Treasure paper, tables and everything made from wood. I suggest doing more promotions. Tell everyone you know how to protect our world and endangered species.

Finally, I hope you can protect all other animals besides endangered species. Let's have a lovely world. Have a good day and good luck. Thank you for listening.
