

What do you think of the 14-year-old Pregnant Girl?

Recently, a 14-year-old pregnant girl uploaded some photos to the internet, telling people she was proud to be pregnant. After reading that piece of news, I had a short discussion with my mother. We both think that that girl is being absolutely ridiculous. How can she be so inconsiderate? She doesn't care if she can provide a healthy, secure life for the baby. She is also neglecting her parents' feelings. Her action is affecting the image of Hong Kong as a whole.

On the other hand, we highly respect her courage for wanting to keep the baby because she is only 14 years old, which is the same age as I am. In fact, she is still far too young to have a baby and has a high chance of miscarriage during the pregnancy.

Moreover, having a baby may destroy her future since she will not be able to go to school at that time. Later, after the baby is born, she will need to take care of the baby so she will not have time to think of her career.

Totally, we support her to give birth but not to raise the baby by herself. First, she does not have the ability to earn money. Second, she may have a miscarriage since she is still young. Third, her future will be ruined as she cannot go to school. We think that she should not be stubborn, letting someone else adopt the baby is the best option.

We hope that she will not be regretful about her decision in the future. May God bless her.
