

The Most Important Person I Know

2E Cheung Ho Fai, David

Miss Chan was my primary school teacher. She is the most important person I know. She was funny, clever and also had a beautiful voice.

When I was just 7 years old, I was a Primary One student. Miss Chan was my class teacher. She loved our class because she liked children so much. She wanted to teach us everything she knew. She wanted us to be real assets of the society in the future. She used many different methods to achieve this. She would sometimes play special games with us and explain the rules and ideas involved in them.

Miss Chan used to discuss important issues from the news with us too. She helped me to understand more about life and the world around us. She is therefore very important in my life as she taught me the most important things in the world.
