Wow! I can't stop thinking of those amazing voices. It must be the most unforgettable night that I have ever had. This was a valuable experience for me! I put on my favourite dress since I would have the opportunity to meet my idols, Westlife, who were due to play in the Hong Kong Coliseum.

My friend Mary is their super fan too, so we went to the show together. There were already many people outside the Coliseum when we arrived. All of us, with expectant faces, crowded into the auditorium. Mary and I bought the most expensive tickets in order to get nearer to the group.

We sat in the first row in front of the stage, which was gorgeously decorated and onto which were projected some really colourful visual effects. Suddenly, we heard a voice saying: 'Are you ready to start the show?'

'Yes!' all of us yelled from the top of our lungs. Westlife appeared from the darkened side of the stage and we screamed crazily and my heart beat violently.

They sang a lot of love songs and we were fascinated by their soft and gentle voices. We clapped our hands and stood up when Westlife finished their last song. They smiled at us contentedly. Although we were reluctant to end the show at the end, we happily departed after lingering awhile.

I won't forget each and every moment at the show and I hope Westlife will have another concert again soon.
